

Colonial Revival

Chestnut Ridge, New Jersey

This approximately 8,700-square-foot, stone-and-shingle Colonial Revival reflects the elegance and charm of grand country homes. Sited on a flat two-acre estate setting in the heart of the Chestnut Ridge area, the home also benefited from being the site of this year's Design Showhouse of New Jersey, and was redecorated by 20 top interior and landscape designers from New York and New Jersey. (Photos featured here are from the Showhouse). The home's special features include detailed custom moldings throughout, a kitchen design by a prominent New York designer, four masonry fireplaces, hardwood floors, limestone, marble, and granite in the entry foyer, baths and counter tops, true divided light windows, copper gutters, stone patios, pavers, a custom roof, and a four car garage
